The ebay ad

that started everything

As a worldwide expert in antique golf clubs and the history of golf, and the most renowned tournament player in hickory golf. I was casually shopping on eBay one day when I came across a very unusual item.

I was fascinated by this jeweled object that completely captured my attention. The seller had no idea what this item was and neither did I.

Here is the copy of the ad and how I made the purchase:

Excerpt from the ad on eBay and how I made the purchase:

"THIS ARTIFACT WAS UNEARTHED BY MY FATHER IN THE NETHERLANDS WHEN HE WAS A TEENAGER. HE WAS DIGGING A DEEP TRENCH AND FOUND THIS ABOUT 15 FEET DOWN, JUST AS YOU SEE IT...

I HAVE OBTAINED THIS FROM MY PARENTS ESTATE AND I'M OFFERING IT FOR THE FIRST TIME.

I HAVE NO IDEA WHAT THIS IS, OR HOW OLD!"

The listing ran for one week without selling and then was re-listed.

It was at this time that Glenn Randall Jensen negotiated with the owner, Pieter E. Hegeman II, from Lancaster County, Pennsylvania.

A trade was made for a set of new PING golf clubs. For 25 years Randy owned Classic Golf, in Omaha, NE.

The bizarre circumstance is that Mr. Hegeman told Mr. Jensen that he had been offered many items in trade for the artifact including a used car and even a Rolex watch, but had really always wanted a new set of PING Golf Clubs.

- right eye lower than the left eye: just like the Mona Lisa
- same enigmatic "smile" as the Mona Lisa
- "10" shingles in a circular (feminine) pattern for the 10th letter of the alphabet "J" for Josephine
- "2" shingles facing forward for the 2nd letter of the alphabet "B" for Bonaparte
- "Fleur-de-lis" design, a symbol of French Monarchy, in the silver base

LEFT SIDE

- "3" shingles for the third Tarot card: "EMPRESS"
- all shingles: "Empress Josephine Bonaparte"
- "3" shingles followed by "4" sapphires and then by "6" sapphires: "Empress" - "Emperor" - "Lovers"
- 10" sapphires in a part-circle pattern: "Wheel of Fate" in the Tarot, and depicted as below a sphinx, as here
- "4" emeralds: "Emperor" (green is Napoleon's favorite color)
- "2" pearls (one on each side): "Wisdom" in the Tarot—Pearls of Wisdom--- under the emeralds, Napoleon's foundation
- 21" rubies in each panel with a "blank" spot for a ruby in the left panel: "21 and a blank": Tarot: 21 cards and a blank card; THE KEY TO UNLOCKING THE CODE
- rear attachment for holding a lock of Josephine's hair

- "21" rubies in all four panels
- left panel has the date coded within: "8" rows (instead of seven) for the 8th month: August; "15" rubies before a blank, flat area, for "August 15" (Napoleon's birthday); and a "blank" spot followed by two rubies for "02" or "1802"; August 15, 1802 was the celebration of Napoleon's 33rd birthday (33rd Degree is the highest level of the Masonic Order) and his Lifetime appointment as Ruler of France
- there are 114 precious stones in the Talisman + the quartz crystal sphinx: "1-14-1" for Napoleon Bonaparte---same exact pattern of coding as used to identify Josephine

WINGS

➤ The "wings" spread out to reveal the secret "Red Cross"---the symbol of the secret society The Rosicrucians of which Napoleon was a member

The Talisman of Napoleon Bonaparte

Owned by the greatest emperor in history...it is the only one of its kind in existence in the world!

Henri Vever (1854–1942) was one of the most preeminent European jewelers of the early 20th century.

In his classic book, French Jewelry of the Nineteenth Century referring to jewelry from Napoleon's Consulate and Empire periods he states:

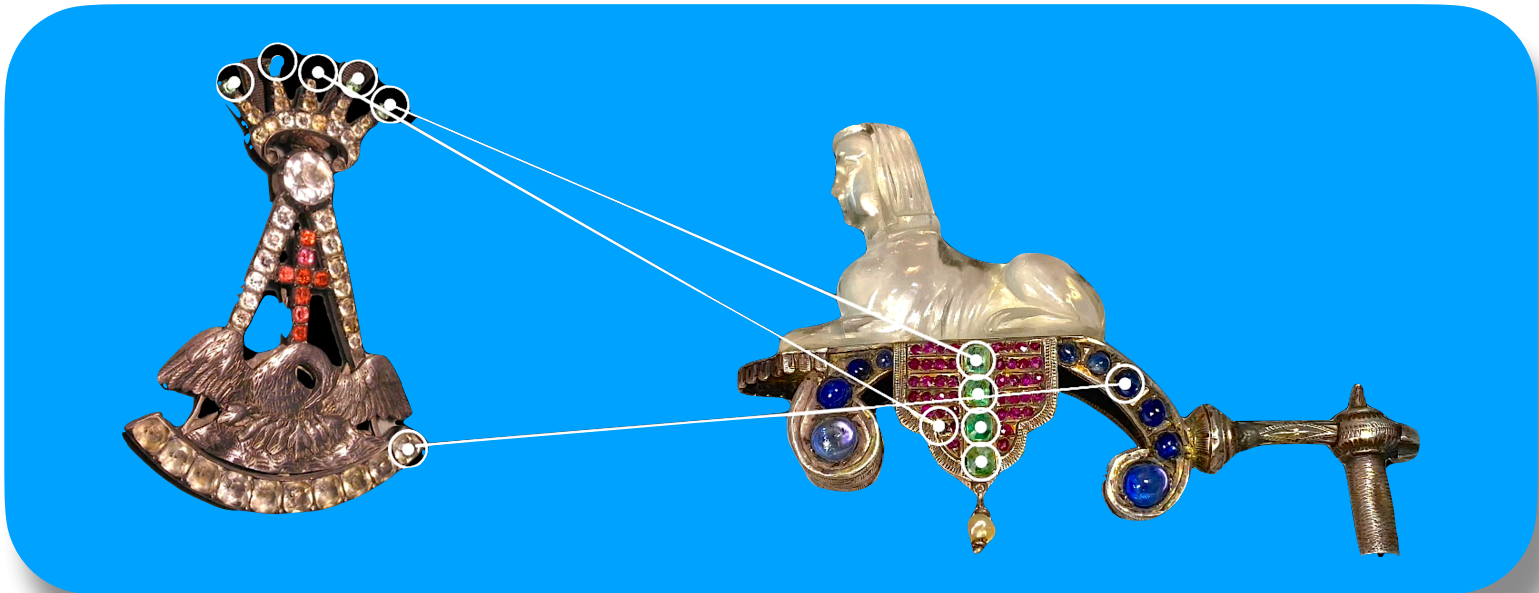

“Visual source material is rare; nearly all the important jewels of the period have been dispersed, broken up or melted down.”

Even the Crown Jewels have not survived and almost without exception they have been remounted.”

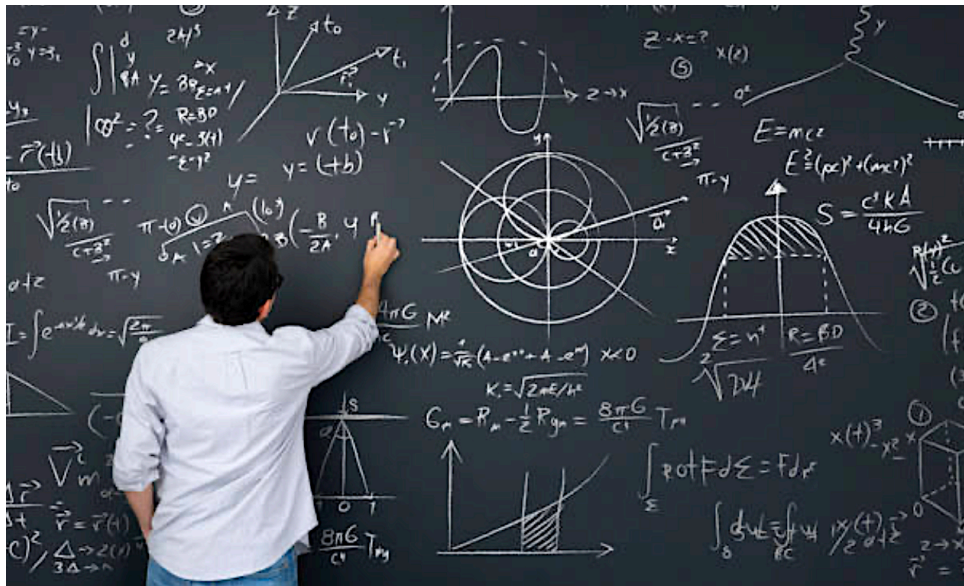

Napoleon's Rosicrucian Medal

Stolen from the Briars Museum in Australia, and never recovered.

The only other medal in existence known to have belonged to Napoleon.

The exact same coding was used by Napoleon on both the Rosicrucian Medal and the Talisman.

PROBABILITY ANALYSIS

Mathematicians are more like truth engineers since it is the only field where something can be proven exactly 100%.

“Expressed as a percentage, the possibility that this artifact is something other than the Talisman of Napoleon is less than 1 in 44 trillion. In other words, it can be mathematically proven that the Talisman of Napoleon has a 0% chance of being something other than what the evidence indicates that it is. This mathematical evidence of certainty is legally considered to be admissible evidence by judges in courts of law in the USA and other countries throughout the world.”

SUPPORTING LEGAL OPINION

“After reading Mr. Jensen’s full paper on this subject and independently researching his key findings, it is my legal opinion that the facts would provide a court of law with the necessary evidence to find that, beyond a shadow of a doubt, this artifact is, indeed, the Talisman of Napoleon Bonaparte.”

Steven Spielberg “Mounting A Big Production” For Stanley Kubrick’s ‘Napoleon’; Project Is Set As Seven-Part Limited Series For HBO

By Peter White
Television Editor

One of Stanley Kubrick’s lost projects, a large-scale biopic of Napoleon Bonaparte, has been in the works for HBO for the last seven years.

Having gone from development and into pre-production, Steven Spielberg says he is “mounting a big production.”

Speaking at the Berlin Film Festival, the famous director said, “With the co-operation of Christiane Kubrick, we’re mounting a large production based on Stanley’s original script Napoleoeon.”

RESEARCH IN FRANCE & BEYOND

Accredited and award-winning
Professional French researchers
Maëva Tarantini & Arthur Balssa spent over five months during 2023 searching volumes of historical records in Paris and throughout international platforms:

Onsite

- The National Archives of Paris
- The Historical Library of the City of Paris
- The Forney Library

Direct Contact

- The Briar's Museum in Australia
- The National Library of Canada
- The British Museum

Their historical verification resulted in additional authentication of the Talisman of Napoleon. Based on extensive discovery and relentless delving into years of inner sanctum records of Napoleon's legacy following his legendary expedition into Egypt,

Their revelatory findings are presented in a 66-page report, compiled in French and English.

How did the Talisman get buried in Noorwijk in the Netherlands?

Their research also provides confirmation of the exact dates and circumstances of Napoleon passing through Noordwijk, where the Talisman was discovered over 100 years later.

Additionally, their research revealed the animosity displayed by Napoleon's second wife, Marie-Louise, toward Josephine, providing additional motivation for Napoleon to discard anything related to Josephine, like his prized Talisman.

Thus we have the time, place and motive!

I spoke to the CEOs of Sotheby's and Christie's who said:

“we cannot disprove your research.”

In other words, it is the real thing.

The basis for a $250 Million Valuation

Janet Gwendolyn Smith

"Janet Gwendolyn Smith, a certified appraiser, now retired, examined the Talisman of Napoleon in person and told me confidentially that she thought the valuation exceeded $250 million."

—Randy Jensen

Emanuel DaGloria

Emanuel DaGloria, Founder and President of EDGIC International (EDGIC International Luxury Consultancy & Media Group), a global and international full luxury service provider, examined the Talisman documents and appraised the "Napoleon Bonaparte Crystal Talisman" as a "rare, genuine historical artifact which Napoleon Bonaparte did design, with secret codes, in precious jewels."

In an appraisal document, he listed the Talisman of Napoleon Bonaparte at the following value:

$250,000,000 USD (Two Hundred and Fifty Million US Dollars).

Note: Neither of these appraisers knew of the other's valuation!

"It's all Just a Coincidence"

As a demonstration, the mathematical equivalent of the 27 coding factors being a coincidence would be the following nickel test:

- Make a blind, random selection from 25 nickels; you must select the only 2004-dated nickel to continue.
- Flip the nickel on a level, hard surface, the nickel must land on its edge to continue.
- The nickel must be oriented North-South to within one degree to continue.
- The nickel must be within one degree of perfectly vertical to continue.
- Now, if the head is pointing East and not West, you have achieved the same proven odds as coincidence accounting for the Talisman decoding factors.
- And remember, you only get one try.

Simple math a third grader can do:

$1/6000$ (coin flip data from a NASA study) X $1/25$ (nickels in jar)
X $1/360$ (coin perfectly North/South) X $1/360$ (coin perfectly vertical) X $1/2$ (coin facing East, not West) = $1/44,000,000,000,000$.
